Agenda item: 6. Ecosprinter Editorial Board Candidates

Dear FYEG members, dear Delegates of Member Organizations,

Living in the Netherlands with very little knowledge of the Dutch language, I worried my opportunities to engage in politics, particularly on social and environmental justice, would be limited. This has thankfully been proven wrong, thanks to the very active international community, but also to FYEG, who's engaging online and in English, offering a fantastic platform for political involvement for young greens from all over Europe. The Ecosprinter is one very concrete way for me to engage more in politics and put my skills in research and project management to work for something bigger. This is why I am running to be part of the editorial board of the Ecosprinter.

I started studying international studies, with a focus on the US at the University of The Hague two years ago. After a few months of discovering the functioning of Les Jeunes Ecologistes as a member abroad, I had the chance to recently join our national board as an international officer. Now, I really want to get more deeply involved with FYEG, and I am convinced I would be most efficient as part of the editorial board for the Ecosprinter. The research track I have chosen to follow in my studies makes me naturally eager to always read more articles, and I am especially interested in those that manage to translate complex and important concepts into an accessible text that reads smoothly. I am convinced that this is the goal to have in mind in order to both develop the Ecosprinter and make sure our ideas are heard loud and clear.

I've understood that the Ecosprinter's topic for the 2026 edition will be 'intersectional feminism'. I am very excited about the opportunity to contribute to the immensely crucial task of publishing articles on the diversity and central role of intersectional feminism in our common struggles. I've enjoyed writing articles on this topic in the past, especially one regarding its roots and the essential role of women within the Black Panther movement, and now I look forward to discovering so much more, and working to put together this essential edition of Ecosprinter.

My volunteering experiences have taught me a lot about teamwork, dealing with deadlines, identifying the rare gems and making sure every voice is heard, which I believe are all crucial skills when it comes to being an Ecosprinter board member. I am looking forward to impulsing debates and making space for information-sharing through the Ecosprinter, like I have done within our very own French young greens 'Europe & International' working group!

I hope to bring my sincere motivation, the skills acquired in previous roles, as well as my pan-european background to good use as a member of the Ecosprinter editorial board. Thank you in advance for your time and consideration. I would be more than happy to discuss any of these points with you further!

Best regards,
Elise Gosselin.

Agenda item: 6. Ecosprinter Editorial Board Candidates

Dear FYEG members,

I'm excited to reach out again and put myself forward for a second mandate on the Ecosprinter Editorial Board.

Being part of the board over the past year has been an incredible experience. I've seen firsthand what works well and where we can improve, and I'd love the chance to build on what we've started. As a member of Youth for a Green Future in Bulgaria, I've had the opportunity to connect with many of you at different events, and I look forward to strengthening those relationships and meeting even more of you!

What are our key achievements in the 24/25 mandate?

- Expanded Ecosprinter's reach in Eastern Europe and the Balkan region
- Reestablished the partnership with the Green European Journal (GEJ)
- Boosted Ecosprinter's presence on Instagram by increasing followers

What challenges does Ecosprinter face?

- Lack of consistency due to frequent team changes and inactivity of members
- Slow onboarding at the beginning, limiting momentum and time for actual work
- Difficulty in maintaining a long-term vision and planning strategy

Why am I applying again?

- To build on the progress made and ensure continuity, addressing challenges like slow onboarding and member disengagement
- To help Ecosprinter become a more consistent, impactful, and engaging platform for green advocacy and youth empowerment
- To share my motivation and skills with other members and encourage stronger commitment to Ecosprinter's mission

How can I contribute?

- I have deepened my expertise in green advocacy, climate communication, and sustainability through multiple academies (European Green Academy 2024 in Brussels, Green Youth Academy 2024 in Sofia)
- I have developed leadership and organizational skills as a member of the Executive Committee of Youth for a Green Future
- I have gained content creation and social media management skills through a Content marketing course, relevant for enhancing Ecosprinter's outreach and engagement

After a year of getting to know Ecosprinter and its challenges, I'm even more ready to tackle them and make continuity a priority. I'm excited to keep working on making Ecosprinter more visible, consistent, and engaging with content that truly matters.

Looking forward to hopefully continuing this journey!

Green wishes,
Kristina Konarcheva

We are living again in a time of cold war in Europe and in the world. Last year's European elections showed us more than ever why we need the EU, the rise of the far right is frightening even outside Europe, international conflicts, the election of a crazy and dangerous president in the USA, But we the green youth, we must not give up and continue our fight for the climate, the democracy, against the far right as well as all the other causes, to which our green policy is fighting for, we are the future, it is our fucking future and that of the next young generations who will be one day the future.

Green politics has always interested me. Equality between men and women, feminism, women's and lgbtq+ rights....and of course the climate, biodiversity our earth and Europe are all areas in which I'm getting involved.

News and journalism have always interested me. I've always loved reading, especially the political pages and watching the news on television, which has made me more interested in politics.

In 2019, I decided to get involved, first in the youth section, then the local section of my city and the mother party.

I was a member of the executive committee of the youth section and in my local section. Now I'm a member of the gender equality council of my mother party.

Very present on social networks for my local section and my own political insta account, I prepare, publish publications, photos, stories, ...

I'm applying for Ecosprinter Editorial Board because I'd like to get even more involved and work with fyeg,

I like writing, learning, exchanging, and debating. I'm more than motivated and feel ready to embark on a new experience and new challenges.

MOTIVATION LETTER

The Ecosprinter could be one of the strongest internal forms of communication within FYEG, as well as a potential form of outward political influence. Unfortunately that isn't the case right now, which is a missed opportunity for our very diverse and talented member pool. We are so incredibly talented and showcase such a wide array of skills and perspectives, which is currently not being reflected in our fantastic internal magazine.

As a member of the Ecosprinter Editorial Board I pledge to work my very hardest to increase member participation in the magazine, as well as providing a platform reaching out into the entirety of both our organization and our member organisations. We also have big and untapped resources in our mother parties that, whilst not necessary for our work concerning antifascism and climate solidarity, definitely are ours for the taking should we so choose.

In a time where journalism and journalists are increasingly targeted and politicised it is of utmost importance that we provide a free platform for expressing a wide array of political opinions within our green movements. It is equally important for us, as greens, to be able to communicate our differences in politics in a safe space and creating a platform where these discussions can be had.

Leftist infighting is currently dividing us and bridging gaps when we should be building bridges. Here we have an amazing opportunity for us to have these discussions in a safe space and hopefully creating understanding and solidifying our bonds at a time where all forces are in motion to pull us apart and weakening our momentum for actual lasting change.

I, by no means, intend to change the world through the Ecosprinter. But one thing that I have learned in my many years in green politics is that everyone is needed. The person who brings baked goods to the local meetings, the writer of the agendas, the planner for the protests. I hope to play my small part in this by helping to build and sustain a platform for us, and that might help those who feel alone in their politics feel strengthened by our organization's incredible compassion and solidarity.

Yours truly,
Tilde Isaksson

The Cultural Battle Needs Us

I'm Vincent, and I'm running for the Ecosprinter Editorial Board not just to represent myself, but to represent a vision for what Ecosprinter could become: a radical, youth-led Green full media platform.

The far-right is winning the cultural battle, and they didn't do it by staying passive. They built entire media ecosystems: news channels, viral TikToks, podcasts, and Twitch shows that dominate youth spaces. Meanwhile, the Greens are often the least present political family online.

Some on the left, like The Left in the European Parliament, are beginning to push back, creating Twitch shows, embracing meme culture, and experimenting with storytelling. If the Greens want to stay relevant and visible, we must step up our media game. Ecosprinter can be the platform that leads that change.

Ecosprinter must be bold. It must be accessible. It must reflect the daily realities and the long-term dreams of young Greens across our continent.

What Ecosprinter Could Be

I believe Ecosprinter should:

- Invest in Digital Strategy – Let's stop underestimating the tools of the internet. We can do better. We can be louder, sharper, and more present.
- Celebrate Local Power – Local actions are not side stories. They are the Green movement's foundation. Ecosprinter should document, amplify, and connect them.
- Collaborate, Not Compete – Let's work with Member Organizations, newsletters, and independent voices to build a shared media culture.
- Speak Many Languages – Translating articles is just the beginning. We must create content that lives beyond the English-speaking bubble and reaches our diverse base.

Independent, but Not Alone

I'm running as an independent candidate, because I believe Ecosprinter needs voices that act, not wait for permission. We shouldn't wait for permission to build the media we need. I carry the experiences of working on local and European campaigns, writing for Ecosprinter, participating in FYEG events, and staying grounded in the values that brought me here.

I don't want Ecosprinter to reflect power structures, I want it to challenge them.

If you believe in that too, I'd be honored to have your support.

Subject: Ecosprinter Editorial Board Candidacy

Dear Green Friends,

I am thrilled to re-run for the Ecosprinter Editorial Board! An amazing FYEG project that amplifies the voice of European green youth. The voice that needs to become way stronger amongst rising far-right and the overall development of global crises. During my mandate as a Board Member, I had a privilege to work with young green activists from all over Europe fighting for a socially just and peaceful continent. They had an opportunity to write about and express their countries' internal issues, so Ecosprinter is gradually becoming a pan-European space for commentary and debate.

As Ukrainian post-growth activist and young worker in the energy sector, I am currently expanding my study regarding just transition and deploying of a post-growth economy in each European state. My desire is to broaden the progressive research in our Ecosprinter team. I will also continue my work of attracting young progressive writers to comment, express their views and by this expanding further our green network. Among that, I will initiate building wider partnerships with grassroots organizations fighting for social justice in all corners of Europe. The Ecosprinter will stay in solidarity with Ukrainian friends with the desire for a just peace in my country and progressive post-war development without USA and Russia imperialism.

To all of that, I would be happy to devote my political experience and skills to the role of the Editorial Board Member. Let's continue the fight and journey together!

Green kisses
