From line 114 to 119:

funds away from military expansion toward climate adaptation and public safety. Europe has a responsibility to defend life in all its forms. ~~The path to true security lies not in fortifying borders or stockpiling arms, but in protecting people, sustaining ecosystems, and ensuring justice across all communities. It is time to reimagine security as collective care because no one is safe until we all are.~~It is not just about borders and weapons, but about building just, caring societies where no one is left behind. It is about protecting, sustaining ecosystems, and ensuring justice for all communities. No one is safe untill we all are.
