To solve it, one needs to investigate the source: Unequal distribution of resources. Patterns of inequalities are deeply rooted in capitalism and are not just an ideological but a material issue. Economic resources and processes need to be democratized and taken into public ownership.
Forms of discrimination are connected by a system that uses it for its own survival. By dividing people into genders and races labour exploitation and resource extraction is tried to be reasoned. Additionally, marginalized groups function as a distraction. Marginalized groups like trans people or migrants are blamed for e.g. bad job market, weak social welfare etc., however the source lies within the system and not particular groups of people.
